Scheduler

Timing issues and signal handling have room for work, particularly in how it relates to threads that need to sleep until a predefined wake-up time. Currently, threads just get woken up in the normal scheduling routine and put themselves back to sleep over and over.