Eddy Current Damped Pendulum

The motion of aluminum plates swinging through the gap of a permanent magnet is damped due to the creation of eddy currents. Aluminum plates with three different geometries are used to show how constraining the size of the eddy current loops can limit the damping force.