A ripple tank is used in conjunction with an overhead projector to show wave properties including Huygen's principle, interference, and refraction. The agitator may be configured to generate plane waves or two separately phased circular waves. A variety of objects used for creating barriers, slits, and lenses is available.