Problems with the existing page? Some FAQ

Please use this page to discuss any problems accessing tasks, to debate how to make new page hierarchies and to help each other with this resource. I'd be grateful if you could consult each other and try out new things, but will also jump in if I can help.

How do I contribute to an existing page as an editor?

How do I contribute to an existing page as a commentator?

If you are revisiting an older page, or generally agree with the content and merely want to make some remarks or correctives, you should not edit the main page but use the comment function instead. To contribute as a commentator, please click on 'Add comment' below the page.

Can I create a new page?

If you feel that the pages do not frame the discussion under a rubric relevant to what you have to say, you can create a new page. However, please do not create new pages unless what you have to say does not fit the existing piranha structure (Tasks, Summary questions, Blogs, or Ask the authors question). If you choose to create a new page, please consider carefully what kind of hierarchy you want the page to be in. To create a new page, click on an existing page of which this will be a 'child page' or branch. In the 'Edit' function on the menu, select 'Create a new page' from the drop down menu. Give a title to the new page and continue editing.

Can I delete entries?

Yes, you can delete your entries in all areas, except in the Blog area.

What if I accidentally deleted a whole page?

No problem, go to 'Edit', 'View', and 'Page history', and you can restore the page.
